F
G This was an appeal by the plaintiff against the decision of the senior assistant registrar in allowing the defendant's application to set aside the writ of summons allegedly served on him at Projenco Ltd, Clifton House, No. 318A Kings Road, Reading RG 4JE, England, United Kingdom. The plaintiff's claim against the defendant was for monies allegedly due from the defendant arising from trading in securities by which the plaintiff acted as the defendant's stockbroker. On 21 March 2001, the plaintiff filed an application in Dagang 7 Kuala Lumpur High Court for leave to issue and serve proceedings out of jurisdiction against the defendant pursuant to O. 6 r. 6 and O. 11 of the Rules of the High Court 1980 (RHC). On 10 April 2001, leave was granted by Dagang 7 High Court and on 16 April 2002, the writ and statement of claim were filed in Dagang 8 High Court. On 5 August 2002, another order for leave to issue and serve proceedings against the defendant out of jurisdiction was obtained in Dagang 8 High Court. Attempts were made by the plaintiff to serve the writ of summons on the defendant personally in England and the United Emirates but all were in vain. Subsequently, on 13 October 2005, the notice of the writ and the statement of claim were sent by first class registered post to the defendant in compliance with the Civil Procedure Code of England and Wales. The plaintiff submitted that it had made several extensions to the writ because numerous attempts to serve the writ and statement of claim by personal service were unsuccessful. The plaintiff also argued that the defendant had not substantiated any prejudice he had claimed to suffer. Three crucial issues arose: (i) whether the writ ought not to be extended; (ii) whether the leave to issue and serve the notice writ out of jurisdiction was properly obtained and (iii) whether the notice of the writ was properly served on the defendant.

Held (allowing the appeal):

- (1) The amended O. 6 r. 7(2) of the RHC which provides that a writ may be extended twice does not prohibit the registrar from extending the writ more than twice where the justice of the case requires. By the use of the word 'may', the amendment was intended to provide some restrictions on the registrar's discretion, but not to the extent of fettering him where circumstances justify, to order extensions more than twice. The defendant was not within jurisdiction and the affidavits supporting the application for extensions clearly showed that attempts were being made to serve the writ through the good office of the Federal Court Registry for onward transmission to the Chancery Department of the High Court in England through Wisma Putra. In this case, the defendant was residing outside the jurisdiction and difficulties were encountered in the plaintiff's attempt to serve the notice of the writ and there was evidence that he was evading service. To refuse extension in such a case would allow the defendant to stay out of jurisdiction and take advantage of the statute of limitation to avoid the plaintiff's claim without a trial, an obvious injustice to the plaintiff. (paras 18, 19 & 20)

- A (2) Before the plaintiff filed the writ of summons which had to be served out of jurisdiction it had to seek leave to issue the same under O. 6 r. 6 and O. 11 of the RHC and the correct way to begin was to file the originating summons which it had done. Only after obtaining leave on the originating summons
- B could the plaintiff file the writ as it had done at the High Court registry. The writ that was issued out of the registry was issued on the strength of the leave obtained at the Dagang Court 7 and the suit was later allotted to the Dagang 8 Court where it would therefore reside. There was therefore
- C nothing irregular on this issue. (paras 21, 22, 23, 24 & 25)
- (3) The notice of the writ in Form 11 that was sent to the defendant by the plaintiff under O. 11 r. 5(3) of the RHC constitutes in its own right a notice notifying the defendant that the plaintiff had begun an action against him in the High Court Malaya and requiring him to enter appearance failing which judgment may be entered against him. The plaintiff by serving the notice of the writ on the defendant under English Civil Procedural Rules (CPR) 6.2 had complied with O. 11
- D r. 5(3) of our Rules of the High Court 1980. The service therefore constituted a good service of the notice of the writ. (paras 37 & 38)

[7] Attempts were made by the plaintiff to serve the writ of summons on the defendant personally in England and the United Emirates but all were in vain.

G

[8] On 28 October 2004 the plaintiff obtained the 1st order for substituted service. The plaintiff did not act on this order. This order provides for service to take effect 30 days after the date of advertisement and posting. NB: no action taken on the order.

H

[9] On 8 April 2005 the plaintiff obtained a 2nd order for substituted service. This order provides for service to take effect seven days after the date of advertisement and posting.

I

- A [10] On 3 April 2006 the plaintiff obtained an order amending the order of 8 April 2005 for substituted service. The purpose of this amendment was to amend the requirement to serve the writ, the statement of claim and the order for substituted service to the requirement to serve the notice of the writ of summons by substituted service. This is to shorten the textual contents of the advertisement.
- B

- C [11] On 13 October 2005 the notice of the writ and the statement of claim were sent by 1st class registered post to the defendant (exh. "A6" encl. 67) in compliance with the Civil Procedure Code of England and Wales pursuant to the order obtained by the plaintiff from the Dagang 7 court on 10 April 2001.

- D [12] On 4 and 5 April 2006 substituted service of the notice of the writ of summons was first executed in Malaysia and the United Kingdom by advertisement and posting on the terms of the amended order dated 3 April 2006.

- E Submits: Leave was in fact granted in Dagang 7 Kuala Lumpur High Court by originating summons on 10 April 2001. It is by this very leave that we proceeded to issue and to serve out of jurisdiction. We took out the writ on 16 April 2002 to be served outside the jurisdiction within six months.

- F The leave that we are relying on is the leave that is granted by Dagang 7. The Practice Direction cited by the defendant No. 2 of 1982 was issued at that time when there was no division in the Kuala Lumpur High Court. The division just came in on 1 January 1987 by Practice Direction No. 7 of 1986.
- G

In any case Dagang 7 and Dagang 8 are in the same High Court.

- H Submits: We had made 7 extensions to the writ. This was because numerous attempts to serve the writ and statement of claim by personal service were unsuccessful as explained in the affidavit of the plaintiff (encl. 67)

I

Submits: Defendant had been evading service (see exh. "A5" encl. 67 – English solicitor's Statutory Declaration saying contacted defendant by phone, later defendant did not turn up. Subsequent attempts at personal service but in vain).

A

Submits: There is a typographical error with respect to number 566 which was advertised as 556 in the advertisement in the United Kingdom. No prejudice. If court accepts service by post as valid then the numbering error is irrelevant.

Submits: All the complaints are merely as to the regularity or irregularity of the procedure. The defendant has not on the affidavit substantiated any prejudice he claimed to suffer.

D

[13] The appeal is opposed by the defendant on the following grounds

1. The plaintiff did not obtain leave in this court to serve the writ out of jurisdiction contrary to O. 6 and O. 11.

E

2. What the plaintiff is relying on now is to show by its latest affidavit dated 18 October 2006 that leave had been obtained a year ago by means of Originating Summons D7-24-79-2001 vide order dated 10 April 2001.

F

3. This leave is supposed to be used to serve a notice of writ of summons on the defendant at the addresses mentioned in Dubai and/or in reading.

4. The leave so granted was in respect of the proposed writ of summons to be issued in the Dagang 7 but no writ was filed in Dagang 7. Instead the writ was filed in Dagang 8. See Practice Direction No. 2 of 1982.

G

Submits: There was never any leave obtained in this court.

H

5. Assuming that the leave obtained was regular, the said writ was never served on the defendant. This writ (exh. "AC3" encl. 57) was never served on the defendant. The defendant had notice of the writ only by way of advertisement dated 5 April 2006 but the writ was under Civil Suit No. D8-22-556-2002. NB: The number 556. Here the suit number is 566.

I

- A 6. The plaintiff failed to comply with the order for substituted service obtained on 28 October 2004 wherein the order specifically says that it should be 30 days to be deemed service. In the advertisement it is stated as seven days deemed service.
- B Submits: This is bad.
- C 7. The advertisement also failed to state that the defendant would have 30 days to file in their defence after the memorandum of appearance to be filed in compliance with the leave obtained by the plaintiff.
- Submits: This is bad.
- D 8. The plaintiff thereafter on 8 April 2005 obtained another order for substituted service and extension of time from this court to serve the writ of summons dated 16 April 2002 and statement of claim dated 15 April 2002 pursuant to O. 62 r. 5(1) and (2) of the Subordinate Courts Act 1980. This order was amended on 3 April 2006 a year after.
- E The amended order obtained now says that a notice of writ of summons is to be served by substituted service.
- Submits: Amendment is bad as they failed to amend the application itself.
- F 9. The writ has been extended wrongly 7 times from 2002 to 2006 thereby depriving the defendant from pleading limitation.
10. The amended order of 3 April 2006 is not the same as the original 8 April 2005.
- G [14] Further reply by counsel for the defendant
- H 1. Plaintiff has indicated that they were relying on the leave obtained in the Dagang 7 court. However, if that is the case why is that there is no record at all of the Dagang 7 order in this court.
2. Furthermore why then did they need to apply for a second leave order from this court on 5 August 2002.
- I 3. But plaintiff had proceeded on the leave order obtained on 5 August 2002. Contemporary documents showed this – refer to encl. 67 exh. “A4”.

Submits: that the court's record would show that the plaintiff was relying purely on the leave obtained on 5 August 2002 and there was never any indication that the plaintiff ever relied on the leave obtained in the Dagang 7 court. A

4. Extension of 7 times should not have been granted because as early as October 2003 the court has already informed the plaintiff that they would not oblige the plaintiff for any extension of time due to O. 6 r. 7(2) of the Rules of the High Court 1980. See encl. 67 exh. "A4" pp. 32-35. B C

5. Service by first class post is bad because r. 6.3 of the Civil Procedure Rules, United Kingdom provides that the court is to serve the document unless it falls within the exception.

Submits: applicable rule service of foreign process r. 6.3(2) of the Civil Procedure Rules. In conclusion submits that they had failed to pass the first hurdle of obtaining leave to commence this proceeding which is to be served out of jurisdiction and if the plaintiff is insistent on saying that the Dagang 7 order is valid we humbly adopt your Lordship's statement that second leave superceded the first leave. D E

NB: 1. Court to note when this suit was filed plaintiff had relied on leave obtained in Dagang 7 although subsequently another leave from Dagang 8. This was not used – no explanation given as new counsel has taken over. F

2. Plaintiff used second leave to serve out of jurisdiction. See letter to Federal Court to seek assistance to serve through UK judiciary. G

Findings And Decision

[15] This appeal would stand or fall on the findings on three crucial issues: H

- i) whether the writ ought not to be extended;
- ii) whether the leave to issue and serve the notice writ out of jurisdiction was properly obtained; and I
- iii) whether the notice of the writ was properly served on the defendant.

- A [16] The first issue – Whether the writ ought not to be extended
The issuance of a writ and its subsequent extension is strictly the function of the registrar acting within the power conferred upon him under the law and the RHC.
- B [17] Where the registrar acted within the law and the RHC in the exercise of his discretion to extend the writ it is incompetent for the defendant to challenge his decision. The defendant may only challenge the legality of its issuance.
- C [18] The amended O. 6 r. 7(2) which provides that a writ may be extended twice does not prohibit the registrar from extending the writ more than twice where the justice of the case requires. By the use of the word “may” it is clear to me that the amendment was intended to provide some restrictions on the registrar’s discretion, but not to the extent of fettering him where circumstances justify, to order extensions more than twice. Had it been the object of the rule to prohibit the extension of a writ more than twice, it would so provide for in clear and absolute terms.
- E [19] The defendant was not within jurisdiction and the affidavits supporting the application for extensions clearly show that attempts were being made to serve the writ through the good office of the Federal Court Registry for onward transmission to the Chancery Department of the High Court in England through Wisma Putra and as for the last (7th) extension, the affidavit in support had alleged on credible grounds that the defendant had been evading service.
- F
- G [20] It is true that a writ should not generally be allowed to be extended where to do so would deprive the defendant the defence of the action being time barred, but it was generally meant to apply to those cases where the plaintiff had sat on his right to commence an action against a defendant who could be served with the writ. It was not meant to fetter the discretion of the registrar to grant the extension where as in this case the defendant was residing outside the jurisdiction and difficulties were encountered in the plaintiff’s attempt to serve the notice of the writ and there was evidence that he was evading service. To refuse extension in such a case would allow the defendant to stay out of jurisdiction and take advantage of the statute of limitation to avoid the plaintiff’s claim without a trial – an obvious injustice to the plaintiff.
- H
- I

- [21] The second issue – Whether leave was properly obtained A
Before the plaintiff filed the writ of summons which had to be served out of jurisdiction it had to seek leave to issue the same under O. 6 r. 6 and O. 11 of the RHC and the correct way to begin was to file the originating summons which it did. B
- [22] Only after obtaining leave on the originating summons can the plaintiff file the writ as it had done at the High Court registry.
- [23] Leave was applied for by originating summons in the Dagang 7 court and the writ was later filed in the Dagang 8 court. C
- [24] The plaintiff did not have control of which court the originating summons that it had filed would be heard. Nor would it have any control over which court the writ of summons would be allotted to after it was issued. D
- [25] It is clear that the writ that was issued out of the registry was issued on the strength of the leave obtained at the Dagang 7 court and the suit was later allotted to the Dagang 8 court where it would thereafter reside. E
- [26] There is therefore nothing irregular on this issue.
- [27] The third issue – Whether the notice was properly served on the defendant F
It is pertinent to note right from the start that the “command” from a writ issued out of our High Court does not extend to other jurisdictions.
- [28] To serve the writ on a defendant residing out of jurisdiction would constitute an encroachment on the sovereignty of the country where the defendant resides. Hence the provision in the RHC that only a notice of the writ and not the writ itself should be served on a defendant residing outside the jurisdiction. G
- [29] Essentially, the objective of serving a notice of the writ or for that matter any notice on a defendant whether within or without the jurisdiction is to bring to his notice that the plaintiff has filed an action against him in this jurisdiction and that he is required under the law of this jurisdiction to enter appearance failing which an action may proceed in his absence and judgment entered against him. H

- A [30] A notice may therefore be effected by any means (inclusive of the established methods of personally serving the notice on him, by notice in the newspaper, by post, or for that matter by any other means) by which the specific contents therein can reasonably be communicated to him, subject only to the rules of
- B the RHC.

[31] The RHC has set out under O. 11 r. 5 how a notice of a writ may be served as follows:

C Rule 5. Service of notice of writ abroad: General (O. 11 r. 5)

- (1) Subject to the following provisions of this rule, Order 10 rule 1, and Order 62 rule 5, shall apply in relation to the service of a notice of a writ notwithstanding that the notice is to be served out of the jurisdiction.
- D (2) Nothing in this rule or in any order or direction of the Court made by virtue of shall authorize or require the doing of anything in a country in which service is to be effected which is contrary to the law of that country.
- E (3) A notice of a writ which is to be served out of the jurisdiction need not be served personally on the person required to be served so long as it is served on him in accordance with the law of the country in which service is effected.
- F (4) Where a certificate under the following provisions of this rule is produced in relation to the service of notice of a writ in accordance with rule 6 or rule 7, Order 10 rule 1(4), shall not apply in relation to that service.
- G (5) An official certificate stating that a notice of a writ as regards which rule 6 has been complied with has been served on a person personally, or in accordance with the law of the country in which service was effected, on a specified date, being a certificate:
- (a) by a consular authority in that country; or
- H (b) by the Government or judicial authorities of that country; or
- (c) by any other authority designed in respect of that country, under the Hague Convention,
- I shall be evidence of the facts so stated.

- (6) An official certificate by the Minister stating that notice of a writ has been duly served on a specified date in accordance with a request made under rule 7 shall be evidence of that fact. A
- (7) A document purporting to be such a certificate as is mentioned in paragraph (5) or (6) shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be such a certificate. B
- (8) Where the defendant is in Singapore or Brunei, the notice of a writ may be sent by post or otherwise by the Registrar to the Magistrate, Registrar, or other appropriate officer of any Court exercising civil jurisdiction in the area in which the person to be served is said to be or to be carrying on business for service on the defendant, and if it is returned with an indorsement of service and with an affidavit of such service, it shall be deemed to have been duly served. C
- [32] The plaintiff claimed to have effected service of the notice of the writ both by substituted service under O. 62 r. 5 and by direct service under O. 11 r. 5(3) wherein the procedure for service of documents by post as provided under the English Civil Procedure Rules (CPR) 6.2 was followed. D
- [33] Having considered the affidavits and heard the submission of the parties, I would have to agree with the submission of the defendant that the plaintiff's service by substituted service was fraught with irregularities in that the order to serve out of jurisdiction was again obtained from the Dagang 8 court on 5 August 2002 when leave had already been obtained from the Dagang 7 court earlier on 21 March 2001. The request by the plaintiff to the authority (in this case the Federal Court Deputy Registrar) by letter dated 8 November 2002 seeking his assistance to communicate with the judicial authorities in England and UAE to have the writ served on the defendant was indeed based on the second leave obtained on 5 August 2002 from the Dagang 8 court, and enclosing there with sealed copies of notice of writ to be served out of jurisdiction dated 21 August 2002 and the extended writ of summons dated 16 April 2002 both based on the 2nd leave. E
- [34] But the plaintiff in this case had not only applied to serve the notice of the writ by substituted service it had also relied on the direct service under O. 11 r. 5(3) read with the English CPR 6.2. F
- G
- H
- I

A [35] Order 11 r. 5(3) made it clear that a notice of the writ need not be served by personal service on the defendant provided it is served on him in accordance with the law of the country in which service is effected

B [36] A plaintiff intending to serve a notice under O. 11 r. 5(3) need not therefore obtain any further order from the court after having been granted leave to serve the notice of the writ. To be effective all that the plaintiff is required to do is to comply with the English CPR 6.2 with respect to the service of a notice which
C read as follows:

I. GENERAL RULES ABOUT SERVICE

6.2 Methods of service – general

D (1) A document may be served by any of the following methods:

- (a) personal service, in accordance with rule 6.4;
- E (b) first class post (or an alternative service which provides for delivery on the next working day);
- (c) leaving the document at a place specified in rule 6.5;
- (d) through a document exchange in accordance with the relevant practice direction; or
- F (e) by fax or other means of electronic communication in accordance with the relevant practice direction.

(Rule 6.8 provides for the court to permit service by an alternative method)

G (2) A company may be served by any method permitted under this Part as an alternative to the methods of service set out in:

- H (a) section 725 of the Companies Act 1985 (service by leaving a document at or posting it to an authorised place);
- (b) section 695 of that Act (service on overseas companies); and
- I (c) section 694 A of that Act (service of documents on companies incorporated outside the UK and Gibraltar and having a branch in Great Britain).

[37] The notice of the writ in Form 11 that was sent to the defendant by the plaintiff under O. 11 r. 5(3) constitutes in its own right a notice notifying the defendant that the plaintiff had begun an action against him in the High Court Malaya and requiring him to enter appearance failing which judgment may be entered against him.

[38] It is clear that the plaintiff by serving the notice of the writ on the defendant under English CPR 6.2 had complied with O. 11 r. 5(3) of our RHC. The service therefore constitutes a good service of the notice of the writ.

[39] The appeal is allowed with costs.

[40] Enclosure 65 is an application by the defendant to set aside the order of 5 August 2002 which is the second leave granted by this court. This should be heard by the registrar.
